

Mother thimbles

Mother's Day is celebrated around the world on the second Sunday in May. The exception to this is the United Kingdom, who celebrates Mothering Sunday on the third Sunday in March. Is it because of the importance of Mothering Sunday in the UK that the branded china thimbles are all British-made?

Some thimbles are lettered "To Mother" with the date; others just have "Mother" plus the date. Some don't even contain the date.

There are not many thimbles made with 'Mother' on them. Caverswall, with their dated series, has the biggest selection that runs parallel to their Easter and Christmas series.

This is another series on a thematic thimble collection, and as such I have included thimbles, which feature Grandmothers and the pairs that represent Mothers and Daughters. I have noticed that the unbranded china thimbles often placed the word 'Mother' on the verso of their usual run of thimbles.

It is not surprising that there are no 'Father' thimbles - after all, it is the mother who is usually the sewer!! I now discover that Hurley painted a Fathers' Day thimble in 1978!! It features a tailor sewing - and one design in 1981 of a train (both by Hurley Porcelain, USA).

Caverswall

Caverswall is one of the largest groups of branded thimbles and had the longest period of modern china thimble manufacture: 1977-1993

shape is dominant, with little variety in shape over 15 years there are signed designs, where the artist would have added a small amount of handpainting over decal of this design most well-known of the Caverswall painters are Mary Grant, William R Tipton and John Ball.
