

Canadian leather thimbles

Bancroft Ontario

I first came across leather thimbles for my own thimble collection in Jean Shoup's Thimbles Only spring 1987 catalogue from California. In the only advertisement I have seen, this mail-order business had a varied selection of eight different designs of these thimbles for sale – they were priced at US$8 each. I have now seen these thimbles for sale by Gimbel & Sons, of Maine in 1986-. The Thimble Guild offered four garden flowers thimbles for sale in July 1995.

The following useful information that accompanied the spring 1987 thimble photos:

"Helen Pitts first created her "life-like" leather maple leaf 20 years ago. She was encouraged to sell them in her gift shop and soon other shops were placing orders. Husband Carl, a tool and die maker, joined Helen, and their jewelry line began to expand. Each piece is still individually handcarved, tooled and H.P. by talented artists. Helen and Carl are now retired, but their company remains in the family under the capable direction of Terry and Cathy Pitts. Their thimbles are a "remarkable" addition to our catalog! Province shown beside their official flower where applicable. Our exclusive – 1" H."

Using this information of a start in 1967, the following information is available on Google.

The company was known as Hinterland Handcrafts, 195 Hasting St N, Bancroft, Ontario, Canada. I have not been able to establish whether this name was used from the beginning, nor when the family firm first began to make leather thimbles to extend their range of jewellery. Tilley of Canada Ltd purchased Hinterland Handcrafts, described as a manufacturer of leather flower and suede products - in 1998. Tilley moved their own operations to Bancroft in 2003, using the original home of HH. Contact with Tilley in May 2014 revealed that they don't make thimbles (anymore).

HH also produced suede purses, and baby booties to accompany their leather jewellery, which consisted mainly of brooches and earrings – all for the souvenir market.

The first range of suede thimbles – tho I have noticed that some of their later leather thimbles have the smooth surface of leather, where the suede surface will be on the inside – have the shape of Canadian Provincial flowers affixed to the front of the thimbles. These are realistic portrayals of the twelve Canadian provinces and territories floral emblems, and it is often difficult to remember that these small miniatures are made of leather.

Most of the attached motifs are often slightly larger than the thimble – ie the leaves stretch up above the apex or in the case of birds, the bird shape affixed is wider than the thimbles. There is also a series of garden flowers, Canadian birds and miscellaneous topics.

My early leather thimble from Thimbles Only in 1987, was totally unmarked and was supplied without a backing card nor was it boxed. Whether this was how they were received from HH is unknown – are the backing cards and boxes a new marketing tool?

I have noted some examples with the word 'Canada' inside the apex of the thimble. Some are marked 'Alta.' which I now understand is for 'Alberta'. One of the maple leaf examples has 'Jasper' lettered vertically on the verso. The Alberta Wild Rose has 'Banff' lettered on the verso, confirming that these were sold in the tourist market. Ontario has the whole name lettered on the verso, other have Ont. Even a monogrammed example has surfaced eg A.B

There are also different shapes – all have a slightly domed apex, but some are a much squatter shape. As these are handcrafted thimbles, there will always be slight differences in the attached flowers etc. Note that some of the inner edges are ridged or fluted.

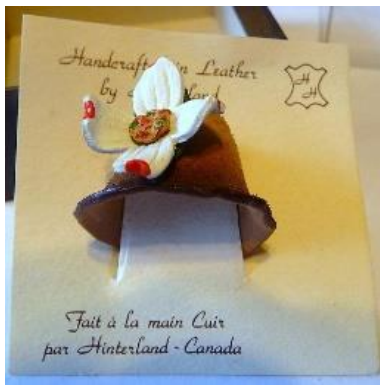

As Canada has two official languages, the backing cards are lettered in English and French. "Handcrafted in Leather by Hinterland/Fait a la main Cuir par Hinterland – Canada" with the HH logo in the corner. The Province flowers' backing cards also identify the name of the flower and the province – in both languages.

I think the third card illustrated is the most recent one? It is lettered only in one language "Canadian Naturals by Hinterland Handmade from leather". There is a background illustration of a tree and no company logo.

I don't recognise some of the flowers – please help if you know their names and I am missing one of the Province flowers photo.

Thank you, Betty Gerrits of Canada for sharing your knowledge and photos of these Canadian suede leather thimbles.
